How to log on

Go to www.abcfoodlaw.co.uk

Click on the “login” logo

The image shows a screenshot of the ABC Food Law website homepage. At the top left is the logo "abc Food Law" with "abc" in a green square and "Food Law" in blue text. To the right of the logo is a photograph of fresh strawberries. Below the logo is a green navigation bar containing the following links: "About Us", "Consultancy", "Webinar Service", "Training", "Online Training", "Contact us", and "Food label reviews". On the right side of this bar is a "Login" button with a keyhole icon. A blue arrow points from the text "Click on the 'login' logo" to this button. Below the navigation bar is a white section with the heading "Welcome to ABC Food Law" and the text "ABC Food Law is a niche firm of food consultants specialising in the training of food law enforcement officers." followed by a paragraph: "We also work with food and food-related businesses who want to ensure their products and services comply with the complex regulatory framework relating to food law. Our clients recognise that there are risks associated with placing non-compliant products on the market, and come to us to ensure that these risks can be safely managed so they can concentrate on developing their business." At the bottom of the page are three promotional tiles: "Online Training" with an image of a woman at a computer, "Food label review service" with an image of food and "abc LEGAL LABEL" logos, and "Contact Us" with an image of a hand pointing at digital icons.

Quiz: Export certification webinars

1. Which is the case for processed and composite food products, fishery products and products not of animal origin (PNOAO)?

Choose one of the following

- These products generally do not require formal Export Health Certification. They may require attestation by the local authority to confirm compliance with EU food law.
- These products are generally subject to a formal APHA/DAERA issued EHC signed by an official veterinarian prior to export
- These products are subject to an EHC signed by Defra
- These products are subject to an EHC signed by the Food Standards Agency/Food Standards Scotland

2. What should a local authority initially suggest if an exporting business is unable to source an example certificate or import
